ENERGY & NATURAL RESOURCES

John Judge is a leading independent arbitrator specialising in international commercial disputes. He was at Stikeman Elliott LLP in Toronto for 35 years where he left in 2013 as senior partner to launch his arbitrator practice. He then became a member of 39 Essex Chambers (London) until 2020 when he joined Int Arb Arbitrators.

He is also a founding member of Arbitration Place (Toronto). John has sat as arbitrator and chair on substantial international disputes under ICC, LCIA, ICDR, SIAC, BCICAC and AdHoc rules in a variety of seats including London, New York, Paris, Houston, Washington, Canada and the Middle-East.

John has acted as arbitrator in numerous disputes involving mining properties (gold, copper, iron ore), mining and milling operations, off take agreements, royalty agreements, commercial investment and joint venture agreements. His commercial oil and gas disputes have involved joint ventures and other commercial agreements including supply, pricing and swap agreements, royalty agreements, leases, well operating, facility processing and transportation agreements.

He is experienced as arbitrator and counsel in large engineering and construction disputes and arbitrations ranging from complex industrial plants including sophisticated cogeneration and hydro-electric facilities, nuclear generation and waste disposal facilities, oil and gas facilities and pipelines, offshore drilling platforms and FPSOs, complex petrochemical plants including copolymer and aromatics plants, mines and gold milling plants, paper mills to air-separation plants, as well as commercial buildings and residential projects including condominium and apartment buildings.

John has been appointed as arbitrator by states and state owned entities as well as by some of the largest mining and oil and gas companies in the world.

MEDIATION & DISPUTE BOARDS

John acts as a mediator in commercial disputes.

He is experienced in the use of interest-based and principled-based mediation techniques to achieve a high level of success in the resolution of commercial disputes.

John's lengthy experience as counsel and also as arbitrator assists in providing insights into the dynamics of complex commercial disputes and the interplay of the legal, commercial and interpersonal\emotional issues which drive disputes and impede negotiated resolutions.

As mediator, he works with the parties and their counsel in advance of the mediation to ensure adequate and timely disclosure of forensic facts, documents and legal positions relied upon by the parties in support of their case, as well as the confidential disclosure of important underlying factors which may affect negotiation dynamics, including authority to settle and insurance.

John requires sufficient advanced disclosure of material aspects of the case of each party to be able to assess the strengths and weaknesses of the case of each party, their respective interests underlying the dispute and potential barriers to settlement, including missing parties, outstanding information, cultural differences and biases, and any cognitive or emotional issues which may affect the approach by the parties to a negotiated resolution.

His mediation experience encompasses disputes in the following areas: commercial contracts; licensing disputes; shareholder and partnership disputes; complex construction and engineering disputes; insurance coverage disputes; reinsurance disputes; technology and product liability disputes; professional negligence matters; real estate development disputes.

John's broad dispute experience in key industries such as mining, oil and gas, construction, engineering, and technology also enables him to more effectively mediate and resolve disputes related to these industries.
